

L. L. Riegel, Postmaster at Galatia Since 1944, Will Retire on May 31

L. L. Riegel, veteran postal worker and postmaster at the Galatia post office since Jan. 15, 1944, will retire from the service May 31.

Just recently Mr. Riegel revealed he had made application for retirement and the request had been approved.

Mr. Riegel, who was 65 years of age Jan. 10, 1956, first entered the postal service as a substitute clerk in the Harrisburg post office June 12, 1913. Aug. 6, 1915 he was appointed a regular clerk at an annual salary of $800. "That was a good salary in those days," Mr. Riegel stated, as he reviewed the past years.

This will be the second time he has resigned from postal service as he first resigned March 31, 1917 and it wasn't until the fall of 1933 that he returned to post office work, this time at Galatia. He remained clerk at the Galatia office for several years and was appointed postmaster Jan. 15, 1944.

Mr. Riegel's first post office work was in the old Harrisburg post office building on West Poplar street and he helped move the office to the present building, that was ready to be occupied at Christmas time in 1914.

While in the Harrisburg office he worked for three postmasters—T. S. Reynolds, John Odum and J. W. Davis. John A. Gill was postmaster at Galatia when Mr. Riegel started to work there in 1933.

Little Flower Garden Brightens Space Uptown

LIFE UPTOWN: Surrounded by cold brick and stone and concrete a little flower garden is taking shape uptown.

When you pass by the southeast corner of the square, over by Skaggs Electric Co., please pause and gaze. I know the only hesitation one sees uptown is to look into a store window or to keep from getting bumped by an automobile when starting across a street.

But take a look at the little garden coming out right in the middle of the hurry and bustle.

This little garden has been planted between Locust street and the sidewalk, right up at the corner, and reports are that it was done by Sam Knight, barber who operates his business on the lower level of the building.

Seriously, Sam should be congratulated for his effort—a touch of brightness on an unused spot. The verbenas are in bloom. I hope they spread all over the place.

They're going to erect quite a flagpole at the post office and work already has started. The new pole, at the southwest corner of the building, will rise 40 feet into the air. It is being set in a concrete base that is six feet deep.

This pole will replace the flagpole atop the building, from which the Stars and Stripes are displayed each and every day, unless the weather is terrible.

But this didn't happen uptown: An elderly man in a small town worked on Saturday afternoons for the wife of the local minister. However, one day he failed to show up for work.

"Jeb," said a friend as he found the old man sitting in front of the general store, "I just saw the minister's wife and she said you didn't show up to do her odd jobs."

"Look," Jeb said, "every Saturday I work for her and she gives me 50 cents. Then on Sundays the minister makes me put 50 cents in the church collection plate. Then the next Saturday I work hard and the preacher's wife gives me that very same 50-cent piece again. And the way I've got it figured, God ain't making a cent on the deal."

Harold C. Henson, 38, in Accident Near Grayville

A Stonefort Corporation mining official, en route from Indianapolis to the corporation's Will Scarlett mine near Stonefort, was killed yesterday afternoon in a two-car collision.

He is Harold C. Henson, 38, of Indianapolis, assistant secretary of the Stonefort Corporation.

Mr. Henson, who visits the mine south of here periodically, was driving an auto that figured in a collision with one driven by William C. Johnson, 16, Grayville, on a Route 1 curve three miles south of Grayville during a rainfall that made the road slippery.

The youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil H. Johnson, was taken to Carmi Township hospital, where it was reported that his condition was serious but slightly improved.

Kenneth Groff of Grayville, investigating state policeman, said a skull fracture apparently caused Henson's death. The cars crashed head-on, he stated. Both landed upright in a ditch and were total losses.

Henson's body was scheduled to be moved to Indianapolis last night. He is survived by his wife and two small girls.

Methodist Council of Bishops Urges Go-Slow Plan to End Segregation

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—The General Conference of the Methodist Church today studied a "go slow" plan for ending racial segregation in the church.

The proposal came from the church's council of bishops, composed of Methodism's active and retired bishops, and dealt with the toughest subject before the conference's quadrennial meeting.

The bishops proposed that a commission "large enough to be truly representative of all our people" study the racial issue and report the next meeting of the conference four years from now.

Bishop Fred Pierce Corson of Philadelphia, reading the Episcopal address at the opening conference session Wednesday night, reaffirmed the bishops' statement four years ago that "there is no place in the Methodist Church for racial discrimination or racial segregation."

However, he said there are "no iron-clad attitudes and no cure-all prescriptions" for quick racial integration of the Methodists.

Actor Edward Arnold Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actor Edward Arnold died suddenly at his home early today of a cerebral hemorrhage. He was 66.

Arnold, the "Mr. President" of radio and television, had had no previous illness and was in good health.

The actor was born Guenther Schneider in a New York tenement. His father and mother died before he was 9 years old and Arnold was schooled at the East Side Settlement House.

In Richmond, Va., Arnold married Harriett Marshall. They had three children, Elizabeth, William and Dorothy Jane.

Arnold succeeded Francis X. Bushman as star of Essanay Studio in Chicago. Wallace Beery and Gloria Swanson were with Essanay at the time. Arnold appeared in more than 40 pictures.

His marriage ended in divorce. In 1927 he married Olive Emerson, a noted concert singer of St. Paul, Minn. They were divorced in 1949.

Arnold continued on the stage in a variety of productions until 1932 when he was offered a role with Lew Ayres in "Okay, America," his first sound picture.

His screen appearances included "Daimond Jim Brady," "Crime and Punishment," "Cardinal Richelieu," "Blossoms on Broadway," "You Can't Take It With You," "Lillian Russell," "Meet John Doe" and "The Hucksters."

Gospel Singing Program to Feature Blackwood Quartet

There are still some choice reserved seats left for the Blackwood Brothers' gospel singing program here next Tuesday night, it was announced today. Probably America's most famous gospel quartet, the Blackwood Brothers will appear at Bonnell gymnasium at HTHS in an all-nite sing which also will feature one of southern Illinois' finer quartets, the Egyptians.

The Blackwood Brothers, national radio and TV stars, originally consisted of three brothers and a nephew, but today James Blackwood, who was crowned "Mr. Gospel Singer of America" in 1954, is the only member of the original group who remains. He is joined by a nephew, Cecil Blackwood, the youngest member of the quartet at 21, who sings baritone; Bill Shaw, the first tenor, known as the "James Melton of Gospel Music"; J. D. Sumner, who is called America's lowest bass singer; and Jack Marshall, who is acknowledged by all as the greatest pianist in gospel music circles. Jack won a scholarship to the University of Alabama, where he studied piano, and has his own correspondence piano school which teaches thousands of students all over the United States.

Reserved seat tickets are on sale now at Jim's Shoe store, north side of the square, and Davenport Jewelers, 7 West Poplar, in Harrisburg, and are $1.35 each. General admission seats, at $1.00 each, can be purchased from any member of the Harrisburg Junior Chamber of Commerce, or at the door Tuesday night.

The program will start at 8:00 Tuesday night, and the Jaycees want to remind those planning to attend that the Blackwood Brothers' inimitable style and singing ability will provide an evening's entertainment seldom heard in Harrisburg.

One of Four Stolen Parking Meters Is Found Undamaged

One of the four parking meters pulled up Tuesday night was found undamaged yesterday, Chief of Police Ross Lane reported today.

This meter, which still had a lot of concrete around the base of the standard, was found near the rear of the Cummins building. Lane said that apparently it was too heavy to load into a car and was left.

He theorizes that the other three were taken away and broken into for the money they contained.

Three meters were stolen on Church street, one on Jackson.

The Gates feed store of West End was broken into last night by thieves who got away with a large haul.

Sheriff William T. Barrett and Deputy Sheriff Everett N. Sneed, who investigated, said the following was reported stolen: Four automobile storage batteries, $4 or $5 worth of candy, several cans of motor oil, a peanut vending machine and a bubble gum vending machine.

City and County Civil Defense Plan Accepted

Ray W. Altmire, director of Civil Defense in the city and county, announces that a certificate has been received from state Civil Defense headquarters in Chicago. The certificates certify that Harrisburg and the county have qualified to participate in matching funds from state and federal Civil Defense.

The city or county will now be able to purchase equipment under the matching funds program to be used in the event of a disaster or war.

Mr. Altmire also stated that in the event of a disaster of any nature this county could go into action on short notice. Saline county, not being in a target area, is classified as an evacuation area, assigned to East St. Louis.

"We would be expected to assist that area by sending our first aid trained personnel comprising 232 people, including 48 first aid technicians, three doctors, six nurses, two dentists, eight nurses aids, two pharmacists ts, 33 orderlies, 105 litter bearers, two chaplains, three clerks, 16 ambulance drivers and seven messengers," he said.

Saline county has 21 physicians, 38 registered nurses, 12 dentists, four veterinarians, 50 nurses aids, 48 home nurses, six laboratory technicians, 12 laboratory aids, 13 pharmacists.

"Three Saline county people are taking the training at S. I. U. in Radiological Detection. These people will be instructors when they have completed the course. In the event of a disaster of any kind Saline county could house and feed over 3,600 people in public buildings, schools, gymnasiums, club rooms and cafeterias. The reception center would be in the Masonic temple on North Main street. The headquarters for both county and city would be in the Harrisburg city hall.

"Five ground observers posts are well organized in Saline county and are taking part in a regular practice alert from the Louisville, Ky., filter center which we are assigned to.

"The towns having received the Civil Defense certificates are Harrisburg, Carrier Mills and Eldorado. A class of 50 auxiliary police have been formed and are awaiting an instructor. Five auxiliary firemen for each regular fireman will be trained soon in the county."

Street Named at Fort Sill in Memory, Honor of Lt. Col. Ralph Hetherington

FORT SILL, Okla. — In line with Fort Sill's policy of naming landmarks for distinguished Field Artillery officers, a street has been named in honor and in memory of Lt. Col. Ralph Robinet Hetherington of Harrisburg, Ill.

Hetherington Loop, which passes in front of the Teen-Agers' club Officers' quarters north of Post Theater No. 1, had been called Upton Loop but had never been formally designated as such.

(Col. Hetherington, an HTHS graduate in 1935, was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Bluford Hetherington Sr. of Harrisburg. Two brothers, Bluford and John, live here now; a brother, Gene, lives in Benton, Ark.; and a brother, Carl, and a sister, Mrs. Maryvonne Bassford, reside in Washington, D. C. His widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Hetherington, is a resident of Fort Smith, Ark.)

Colonel Hetherington was commanding officer of the 69th Armored Field Artillery Battalion, Seventh Army, and was killed near Strasbourg, France, on Dec. 1, 1944, when he was 27 years old.

A 1941 graduate of the United States Military Academy, Colonel Hetherington was first assigned to Fort Sill for Field Artillery training.

After a short tour at Fort Knox, Ky., he was assigned to Camp Chaffee, Ark., as an instructor. While at Camp Chaffee he was named by the post newspaper as the "most popular young officer" at the camp.

In August, 1943, he went overseas with the 69th Armored Field Artillery Battalion. He fought with the 69th in Africa, Sicily and Italy. While fighting at Cassino, when Colonel Hetherington was acting commander of the battalion, the 69th was chosen for the invasion at Anzio.

Colonel Hetherington assumed command of the 69th in March, 1944. At Anzio one of his superiors said he was in command of "every big gun on the beach-head."

In August, 1944, Colonel Hetherington was promoted to Lieutenant Colonel—the first man in his class to be promoted to that rank.

Colonel Hetherington was killed on Dec. 1, 1944, when the vehicle he was riding in hit an anti-tank mine. At that time he was doing reconnaissance work that might have been delegated to one of his junior officers.

Colonel Hetherington, holder of the Bronze Star, was buried in an American cemetery in France.

Claims Sobolev Violates Duties As UN Official

Action Follows U. S. Ouster of Two Of Soviet Delegation

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. William E. Jenner said today the State Department should oust Russia's top delegate to the United Nations for his part in the "political kidnapping" of five Russian seamen who returned behind the Iron Curtain.

The Indiana Republican, a member of the Senate internal security subcommittee, charged that Arkady Sobolev has "violated his functions, duties and responsibilities as a diplomatic representative to the United Nations."

Testimony before the subcommittee, Jenner said, demonstrates that the five Russian seamen were victims of "political kidnapping" and that Sobolev was a member of the plot.

The five seamen were among a group of nine who sought refuge in this country last fall after their tanker was interned by the Chinese Nationalists on Formosa. Five of them returned to Russia early this month.

The United States Wednesday ousted two members of the Soviet delegation to the United Nations—Aleksandr K. Guryanov, an attaché, and Nikolai Turkin, third secretary of the delegation, accusing them of "objectionable and improper" conduct in the case of the five seamen.

The United States also lodged a stiff complaint against Sobolev. Moscow was told in a tough diplomatic note to instruct Sobolev and his staff "henceforth to adhere to their recognized functions."

The note, signed by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, was handed to Soviet Ambassador Georgi Zaroubin by Assistant Secretary of State Livingston Merchant at the State Department. Zaroubin immediately rejected the U. S. action and protested the ouster of the diplomats.

Senate investigators heard testimony that Sobolev and his U. N. staff exerted threats and intimidation to get the five Soviet seamen to return to Russia April 7.

Return Youth to Franklin County

A Johnston City youth was taken from Harrisburg to Franklin county today to face questioning about a trip he made to Kentucky and Tennessee with another youth and two young girls.

Picked up here for Franklin county was Charles Sneathen, 19. Sneathen admitted to Sheriff William T. Barrett that he and Billy Ray Smith picked up two girls, 13 and 14 years old, at West Frankfort yesterday morning and took them to Kentucky and Tennessee.

The auto ran out of gasoline last night on Route 34 south of Harrisburg and the two girls hitch-hiked to Raleigh, where a service station attendant called Sheriff Barrett. Barrett took the girls to West Frankfort.

The girls told Barrett that they got into the car with the boys to ride to school and that they went off to Kentucky instead. They said they didn't want to go. They told the officers they were not bothered by the boys.

SOVIET SAILORS CLAIM U. S. SOUGHT TO FORCE THEM TO REUNION

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Seek the Lord while he may be found, call upon him while he is near. Isaiah 55:6.

He stands at the door and knocks, why not say, Come In?

This Time It's Different

Editorial — BY BRUCE BLOSSAT

From time to time you hear speculation that northern Democrats might be willing to accept a candidate like New York's Governor Harriman at the Chicago convention, thus risking open revolt by the party's southern wing.

Those who argue this way often point to Mr. Harry Truman's 1948 presidential victory. He won despite the double handicap of a Dixiecrat defection that cost 39 electoral votes in four states, and the loss of New York's 47 votes as a result of the 500,000 total polled by Henry Wallace's Progressive party.

The implication is that any 1956 Democratic nominee might do the same. But there are a number of reasons why this thinking may not win many friends among top Democratic strategists. It involves tremendous risks.

To bring off a triumph, Mr. Truman had to win nearly all the other big states aside from New York—Illinois by 33,000, California by 18,000, Ohio by 7,000 and Massachusetts comfortably.

In addition, he had to break into the midwest farm belt and take Iowa and Wisconsin, generally rated Republican. And he had to hang onto the rest of the southern, western and midwestern states which had been falling to the Democrats since Franklin D. Roosevelt's heyday in 1936.

The year 1956 is another story. Though Thomas E. Dewey was believed strong in 1948, most Democratic strategists would say that President Eisenhower is a much tougher opponent.

They have no Wallace to worry over in New York. But few of them would glibly assume they can take the big states against Ike. They might cut in, but the gamble is real.

If the farm revolt should go big, they might pick off Iowa and Wisconsin as Mr. Truman did. But the total is just 22 electoral votes.

Outside the South there are 11 states with 68 electoral votes which the Democrats won continuously from 1936 through 1948—Rhode Island, Minnesota, Missouri, Oklahoma, Montana, Idaho, Washington, Utah, Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico. In 1952 Mr. Eisenhower won them all. Even if we assume a Democrat, northern style, could regain every one, that still leaves him a long way from the necessary 266 electoral votes for presidential victory.

Go now to the South. The states Mr. Truman lost now have 37 votes instead of 39. But a revolt this time very likely would be bigger, since the segregation issue is far more heated than the general civil rights debate in 1948. Conservatively, one could say it probably would involve at least two more states—maybe Georgia and Arkansas with 20 votes combined.

Fourteen solid and not-so-solid southern states have 146 electoral votes which normally fall Democratic. If 57 from Georgia, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and South Carolina were to split off, the maximum would be down to 89.

Should the revolt be broader, that score would go down.

Add the 89 to the 68 "usual" northern votes Mr. Truman got but Ike swept for the GOP, and toss in the 22 from Iowa and Wisconsin. That's 179, or 87 short of the 266 majority. The rest would have to be picked up in the big states and other spots where Republicans usually or very often triumph.

And this figuring assumes the Democrats would get all four of the southern states Ike picked off: Florida, Texas, Virginia and Tennessee.

What really won the 1948 election for Mr. Truman was his nearly complete sweep of the big states. But the detailed votes show many of those were close. It is unlikely any Democrat paid to calculate successful election strategy is blithely considering "letting the South go" on the chance Mr. Eisenhower can be similarly bumped this time in the great northern industrial states.

Politicians by nature play it as safe as they can. And they don't give anything away to the opposition unless they are compelled to.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Little Progress Toward Peace Since River Elbe Pledge; Eisenhower And Zhukov Once Labored At Russo-American Friendship; Amb. Bohlen Reports Russian People Want Peace.

WASHINGTON. — It was just 11 years ago this week—noon, April 25, 1945—that a patrol of American riflemen pushed through the forward American and Russian lines and linked up with a Russian patrol on the east bank of the River Elbe.

On that blood-soaked river bank with the artillery-shattered bodies of German women and children around them, the Americans met a Russian patrol, embraced, offered a toast to friendship, and vowed that the futile tragedy of war which took the lives of the non-combatant women and children strewn around them, would never happen again.

That day was one to be remembered. For not only did American-Russian forces join together that occasion, but the United Nations Organization held its first meeting in San Francisco that day to consummate the pledge of those Russian and American patriots.

A lot has happened in the 11 years since then. A general named Eisenhower and a Russian marshal named Zhukov later met in Berlin and tried to carry out the spirit of that River Elbe pledge. They worked out a fair degree of cooperation between American and Russian troops.

IKE IN MOSCOW

The general named Eisenhower went to Moscow and told in his book, "Crusade in Europe," how for five hours he had stood on the tomb of Lenin watching a sports parade in Red Square.

"None of us had ever witnessed anything remotely similar," he reported. "Every kind of folk dance, mass exercise, acrobatic feat, athletic exhibition was executed with flawless precision, and apparently with greatest enthusiasm. The band, said to number a thousand pieces, played continuously during the five-hour show."

The Generalissimo (Stalin) appeared to enjoy every minute of the show. He invited me to his side, and we conversed intermittently during the entire period."

"Overshadowing all goals for us Americans," the general named Eisenhower wrote, "was the contribution we locally might make toward establishing a working partnership between the United States and Russia."

Unquestionably he meant what he said. That was the spirit of the times.

IKE IS ACCUSED

The years passed. Times changed. The pictures of Eisenhower and Zhukov sitting together were published by his political enemies to show he was pro-Communist. Nothing, of course, could have been further from the truth. Times changed again. The pendulum of fate swung back, influenced by the death of a dictator, by public opinion, by diplomatic frustration.

A President named Eisenhower once again met his co-commander named Zhukov, this time in Geneva. Not much was scored in tangible diplomatic achievement, but much was scored in creating a better atmosphere.

The President named Eisenhower did a fine job personally. His magnetism, his warmth, the fact that he went all the way to Geneva, melted the myth that the United States was a nation of warmongers. But the diplomats, the generals, and the admirals got into the act and helped to kill some of the success. Also, it takes time to heal the wounds of war, the poison of propaganda—and the man named Eisenhower wanted to remain only four days abroad.

SINCE GENEVA

A lot has happened in the nine months since Geneva. The man whom Eisenhower stood beside for five hours on Lenin's tomb in 1945 is no longer a national hero. His body may even be removed from that tomb. The new leaders who now detract him have been touring Yugoslavia, India, Burma, England. . . . Forty American senators and congressmen last year toured Russia. . . . The American ambassador to Russia has made a vitally important report.

Probably more has happened in these short nine months—that might change the shape of the world—than at any other single period since the first nine months following April 25, 1945, the day when a patrol of American riflemen crossed the River Elbe at noon and mingled with their Russian comrades amid the blood-soaked bodies of German women and children.

Among these important events is the report of the U. S. ambassador, Chip Bohlen. What he reported last week I do not know. But I do know that previously he reported two developments or trends which could change our relations with Russia. They are:

1. The Russian people are sold on peace. They are so sold on peace that the Kremlin would have difficulty reversing this sentiment. To a considerable extent the Kremlin, purposely or otherwise, has been responsible for selling this idea; because it has told the Russian people we are warmongers so repeatedly that, conversely, the Russian people believe the Soviet government is for peace. Since Geneva, when the pictures of Bulganin and Ike were prominently shown around Russia, the Russian people also believe the U. S. A. is for peace. This has been the report of the

PRINCETON, N. J. (AP) — Convicted perjurer Alger Hiss speaks to a Princeton University campus debating society tonight on "The Meaning of Geneva."

Hiss' address to the American Whig-Cliosophic Society marks his first public appearance since he was released from Lewisburg, Pa., federal penitentiary in November, 1954, after serving 3 years and 8 months of a five-year sentence.

The scheduled speech has been opposed by New Jersey congressmen, Princeton alumni and religious leaders. A poll conducted among the student body and Princeton residents showed the majority favored the speech by a lop-sided margin.

Soviet Rulers Attempt to Win Back Good Will

Agree With Eden
On Statement
For 10-Day Meeting

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) — Russia's rulers flew to Scotland in rare good humor today, apparently attempting to win back some of the good will they have lost during 10 days of "little summit" talks with British leaders.

Before leaving London, Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Communist Party boss Nikita Khrushchev agreed with Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden on the terms of a communique which will sum up the meager results of their discussions.

They also held a peace-making meeting with Labor Party leaders, whom they had antagonized at a dinner Monday night. At that time, Khrushchev refused to accept a list of some 200 Social Democrats believed held in Communist jails and angrily blasted the Labor Party for its policies.

When their plane landed at Edinburgh, a heavy shower swept the airfield.

In Jovial Mood
But the rain did not dampen the Russian visitors' enthusiasm. Bulganin, apparently in a jovial mood after the 90-minute flight, inspected a Royal Air Force guard of honor and then playfully slapped Khrushchev several times across the shoulder. Khrushchev stood watching, hands stuffed in his pockets.

The communique summarizing the results of their 10-day visit will be published after their return from a 5 1/2 hour sightseeing visit to Edinburgh. This was expected sometime after midnight (5 p. m. CST).

The communique, or a joint statement to be included in it, will be signed tonight by Eden and Bulganin in the London Foreign Office. It was expected to call for peace in the Middle East and joint action by all interested nations to maintain it. But it will leave unsolved such problems as German unity, European security and disarmament.

Spy Courier Tells How He Helped Reds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harry Gold, convicted atom spy courier, told Senate investigators today that Soviet agents "really did a superb job on me" to recruit him into espionage. But he said he never became a Red.

Gold, a key figure in the Rosenberg atom spy case, testified before the Senate Internal Security subcommittee. He was flanked by four husky deputy U. S. marshals who brought him to Washington from Lewisburg, Pa., Federal Penitentiary, where he is serving a 30-year sentence. He was the courier for the Soviet atom spy ring which included Ethel and Julius Rosenberg, executed in 1953.

The subcommittee said it was questioning Gold as part of a study of the part Americans played in the Soviet spy apparatus. Gold slumped in his chair and talked freely about how he became a spy. He said he never became a Communist and resisted efforts of a friend — whom he identified as chemist Thomas L. Black — to make him a party member.

Furnished Information

Gold said he was led into spy work through gratitude to Black who had got him a job in depression days to keep his family off relief. Gold said he agreed in 1934 to furnish Black chemical formulas and other secrets of his employer, The Pennsylvania Sugar Co. of Philadelphia. He said Black passed these to a Russian for transmission to the Soviet Union.

Later, Gold said, Black introduced him to a Russian official of Amtorg, the Soviet trading agency. The Russian went under the name of Paul Smith.

Gold, 46, described his own state of mind at the time as "cock sure." He said he furnished vast amounts of information although he had qualms about it.

"I couldn't kid myself—I was stealing," he said.

But he said he had an idea he could ignore authority and professed a "genuine sympathy for the people of the Soviet Union."

Subcommittee chairman James O. Eastland (D-Miss.) announced that another member of the Rosenberg ring, David Greenglass, would testify tomorrow. Greenglass, who supplied data to Gold, received a 15-year sentence in the 1951 spy trial.

Greenglass, a brother of Ethel Rosenberg and an army sergeant at the Los Alamos, N. M. weapons laboratory, testified in court that he gave A-bomb data to Gold. He said an A-bomb diagram was among the information he supplied to Russia.

ANPA Reports Gov't to Halt Anti-Trust Suit

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Newspaper Publishers Assn. announced today that it had agreed with the government to terminate an anti-trust action against it charging the publishers with conspiracy in restraint of trade.

The suit was filed in May, 1955, in New York Federal Court. It charged the ANPA and five other associations with conspiring to control the advertising agency business in regard to advertisement in newspapers.

The government charged that the defendants kept a "recognition list" of agencies and excluded advertising offered by agencies not on the list.

The ANPA announcement came at the end of its 70th annual convention after the election of William Dwight, president and managing editor of the Holyoke (Mass.) Transcript-Telegram, as its new president.

ANPA General Manager Cranshaw Williams said it was expected that a final judgment in the government action would be signed later today, pending approval by Federal Judge John M. Coughlin. The terms of the final judgment were not to be made public until the signing.

The ANPA elected as vice president D. Tennant Bryan, president and publisher of the Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch and News Leader.

Other officers elected were: Secretary—Walter J. Blackburn, of the London (Ont.) Free Press; Treasurer—Mark Ferrer, Scripps Howard Newspapers, New York.

Directors elected for a two-year term included Irvin Maier, Milwaukee (Wis.) Journal, and Franklin D. Schurz, South Bend (Ind.) Tribune.

Ex-Con Admits Murder of 21-Year- Old Teacher

MUNISING, Mich. (AP)—A sure-footed convict confessed the murder of a pretty, 21-year-old school teacher and admitted he had been in the room with her shortly before midnight Wednesday.

Police said Leonard H. Lundberg, 35, a parolee, broke down after 12 hours of questioning and showed them the bloodstained body of Patricia Burdick, only three miles from where she hitchhiked a ride with him Sunday night.

The petite brown-haired woman's body was lying under a clump of jackpines and was covered with straw and branches. Blood spattered her tan slacks and red coat and her skull was crushed, police said.

An autopsy was ordered today to learn whether the girl was criminally assaulted. Authorities said assault apparently was the motive for the slaying.

Lundberg would give no motive, police said. He admitted picking up Miss Burdick at an intersection near Seney, Mich., 27 miles south of Grand Marais where she was teaching for the first year.

Father, Freed from Prison, Reunited With Daughter Lost 26 Years Ago

CHICAGO (AP)—Roy Eaton, an ex-convict imprisoned 16 years for a crime he didn't commit, escorted his daughter home today.

The attractive brunette at Eaton's side was the daughter he lost 26 years ago. He found her again Wednesday in a tearful railroad station reunion.

The daughter, 31-year-old Mrs. Emma Kerr of Bloomington, Ind., spent most of her life thinking her father was dead. Her parents were divorced when she was five years old and she never knew what became of her father.

Then, early this month, she read a newspaper story about a man who had regained the freedom he should never have lost.

The man, Eaton, had insisted through 16 years in Illinois' Stateville Penitentiary that he was innocent of the crime for which he was held.

up for which he was imprisoned. He finally convinced Rock Island State's Atty. Gen. J. J. Moran that he was innocent and was freed from Rock Island when the holdup was committed. Moran won Eaton's freedom by getting a confession from the real criminal.

Eaton talked of finding a married daughter in Indiana. When Mrs. Kerr read this, she wondered if the wrong convict could be her father. She asked an aunt and learned it was true.

She took a train to Chicago and her 32-year-old father was waiting for her. They flew into each other's arms and wept.

Eaton had asked the aunt to keep his whereabouts a secret from his daughter because "I wanted to protect her." He has another daughter who was put up for adoption following his divorce and he hopes to find her.

Senate Investigator Subpoena Nixon Campaign Manager in Uniform Inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate investigators today subpoenaed Vice President Richard M. Nixon's campaign manager to ask about a $5,000 legal fee he received from a blacklisted uniform maker, Herbie Kravitz.

Officers were instructed to serve the subpoena from the Senate investigating subcommittee on attorney Murray M. Chotiner in Los Angeles today. Chotiner is a long-time political adviser to Nixon. He managed Nixon's campaign in 1952 and in previous elections.

The subpoena called on Chotiner to testify next Wednesday.

Kravitz refused to tell the subcommittee Wednesday where he had Chotiner interviewed with the Federal Bureau of Investigation in the Los Angeles Department in 1953 when Kravitz was charged with misappropriation of government property in making military parkas. Kravitz was later convicted and fined $5,000.

The pudge, 35-year-old Atlantic City, N. J., uniform maker, now in jail, told the subcommittee in his own words.

Student Council Day Held at Carrier Mills High; Take Over Faculty Duties

The second annual Student Council Day in the Carrier Mills Community High School was held Wednesday. For the entire day, eleven Student Council members took over the teaching and administrative duties in place of faculty members.

The purpose of such a day is to better acquaint the pupils with the organization and operation of the high school and to give them a better insight into the problems encountered during a typical school day.

Students participating, the name of the faculty member they replaced, and duties assigned were as follows:

Richard Hill took over administrative duties in the office, visited classes, handled discipline problems, and taught typing for Mr. Warren Jennings, principal.

Carolyn Absher, acting in place of John Austin as assistant principal, handled attendance, office practice, and bookkeeping.

Pat Flynn acted as teacher of government, world history, American history and economics and supervised the gym during lunch period in place of Mrs. Jean Crowder.

Shirley Pyle, acting in place of Wayne Minton, taught boys' music, Girls' chorus, band, and chorus.

Chanute to Train Personnel to Maintain New Jet

CHANUTE AIR FORCE BASE, Ill. (AP)—The Air Force has assigned Chanute "prime responsibility" for technical training of maintenance personnel for the new F104 jet fighter plane, officials announced Wednesday.

The new jet fighter was unveiled last week. The Air Force said it was the "fastest and highest flying fighter anywhere in the sky."

Chanute's commander, Brig. Gen. A. M. Minton, said Chanute personnel will begin factory training at the Lockheed plant at Burbank, Calif., in June, and student training at Chanute would begin next January.

Technicians also will be trained at the General Electric plant at Evendale, Ohio, which manufactures engines for the jet fighter, Minton said.

The air base already has been assigned "prime responsibility" for technical training for the B52 jet bomber.

The Chanute commander also reported a new rocket testing facility would be placed in operation at the air base by July 1.

Appeal for Volunteer
Help to Complete
Lighted Baseball Field

Charles "Huck" Gee, one of the directors of the baseball program that will put baseball onto a lighted field on the Dorris Heights road this summer, today appealed for help to complete the work on the field this Saturday.

Gee said that anybody who can help, with hammer or saw or any other way, should report to the field.

He stated that a number of carpenters and electricians had already agreed to donate their services on that day.

Haddix Hurls Two-Hitter as Cardinals Blank Cubs, 6-0; Musial Hits 540th Double

By United Press
It's getting so the Chicago Cubs hesitate to venture outside of scenic confines of Wrigley Field.

Thrice the Cubs have invaded enemy territory with the same disastrous results, Wednesday night, the St. Louis Cardinals shut-out over the Cubs.

Southpaw Harvey Haddix turned in a supreme performance, allowing two scant singles, while his teammates parlayed seven safeties into a half-dozen runs.

The Redbirds jumped on Sam Jones, first of three Cub hurlers.

Bull Dogs Edge Carrier Mills, 5-4

The Harrisburg Bull Dogs, scoring a tally in the last half of the last inning, nosed out the Carrier Mills Wildcats, 5 to 4, in a baseball game at the town park diamond yesterday afternoon.

With the count tied 4-4, Mickey Stone doubled for Harrisburg to start the final frame but was thrown out trying to stretch the hit into a triple. However, Jim Cummings singled and Ray Hassett walked to bring up Don Pickford. The big freshman singled home Cummings for the winning tally.

Evans of Carrier Mills, who struck out 10 during the contest, hurled no-hit-no-run ball for three innings and Carrier Mills, who made three runs on three hits, enjoyed a 3-0 lead until the last of the fourth, when Harrisburg scored twice.

Harrisburg scored two more in the fifth and led 4-3 but in the top of the ninth the Wildcats tied the count.

Jim Molinarolo and Bill Hatcher pitched for Harrisburg. Hatcher going into the game in the fourth. Molinarolo struck out three, Hatcher four.

For the game, Carrier Mills got seven hits, Harrisburg six. Tomorrow afternoon Harrisburg goes to McLeansboro.

Chesapeake Bay is the largest inlet in the United States.

for three runs in the first inning. Stan Musial contributed his 540th double of his career to the fray. The two-bagger tied Joe Medwick for third in the all-time league standings.

Meanwhile, the Brooklyn Dodgers ousted the idle Milwaukee Braves out of the top perch of the National league by whipping their arch-rivals, the New York Giants, 7-2. Gil Hodges had a field day at the plate, pounding out a homer, a single and a double in five appearances.

Yankees Increase Lead

Frank Thomas arched a single in the seventh inning to push across the winning run and give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 6-5 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies.

In the American league, the New York Yankees increased their lead over the non-scheduled Chicago White Sox by scoring their seventh victory in eight outings. Victims of the Bombers power was the Baltimore Orioles, 4-2. Gil McDougall supplied the punch to the Yankees eight-hit attack with a blast into the right field stands.

Speedball artist Herb Score posted his first win of the season with a five-hit, 5-2 victory over the Kansas City Athletics. Score, the Indians' strikeout king of 1955, fanned eight batters to boost his season total to 18 in two games.

The Washington Senators held their own tea party at Fenway Park, dumping the Boston Red Sox 4-1. Pedro Ramos sent eight Red Sox batters back to the dug-out via the strike out route and was touched for just three hits.

Players Are Too Serious: Frisch IN THE Sport Parade

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Editor
NEW YORK (U.P.) — Ball players "just don't smile like they used to," Frankie Frisch asserted today, as he inferred that men in the modern era play for business instead of pleasure.

"I don't know whether they're thinking about investing their money, or about their agents, or what," Frisch said. "But they sure are different."

Then he pointed to a grinning Dizzy Dean as an example of his "favorite" type of ball player. "Nobody can deny, or tried to at the meeting of the Sports Broadcasters Assn., that Dean was a smiling type who left 'em laughing. But certainly Frisch has mellowed, because it was Dean who delighted, back in the days of the Gas House Gang, in 'driving the Dutchman crazy'."

Can Laugh Now
Frisch can even chuckle now about Dean's shenanigans.

"Like the time he bet somebody on our club that he'd strike out Vince DiMaggio four times in one game," Frisch said. "He got him three times and then Vince lifted a foul to the catcher on a 2-2 count. Diz ran in and yelled at the catcher to 'drop it.'"

The catcher was so startled that he did, and Diz struck out Vince on the next pitch to win his bet. "The old Fordham Flash almost had apoplexy when such incidents occurred. Yet, in looking back, he wonders at his old-time lack of appreciation. Like the day Diz was supposed to pitch against Eldon Auker of the Detroit Tigers in the final game of a World Series. As Auker warmed up, Dean sidled over behind him, shook his head and whispered:

"You gonna try to beat old Diz with that stuff?"

"Sure, I had headaches now and then," Frisch admitted, "but if I had 25 guys like Diz I'd like to manage again."

Dean, confessing that "it would be great to have that stuff again," showed that he hadn't lost any of the old confidence."

"Those sure wuz good days," he nodded. "I probably wasn't the best pitcher of all time. But I was amongst a bunch of them."

Old Diz, in supporting Frisch's contention that modern players should enjoy themselves a bit more, had some other words of advice for young pitchers.

Fast Ball Best
"That old fast ball still is the best pitch," he insisted. "It's okay to show 'em a curve once in a while because I had five pitches: A fast ball, curve, change up, control and a pretty good duster. But, while I knocked down eight guys in a row one time against the Giants, that fast ball still is the pay pitch."

As example, getting ready for one All-Star game, Diz was warned that the American Leaguers "murdered fast ball pitching."

"I went three innings," he laughed, "and nobody reached first base."

Pitchers have it tougher these days, he admitted, because the rules makers "ain't done nothin' for pitchers." And he thanked the writers and sportscasters for helping him get into the Hall of Fame.

"Even though," Diz said, "those 250 hitters helped a lot."

Even Frisch laughed. Which, whether he'll admit it or not, as he criticizes the solemn performers of today, is something he rarely did back in the days when old Diz was "driving the Dutchman crazy."

VINEGAR BEND—Wilmer Mizell's fireball is not the least reason why the St. Louis Cardinals are fairly certain to shake that "best seventh place club" tag this season.

With Muller as Leadoff Man, Mays Could Take Triple Crown

By JIMMY BRESLIN
NEA Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (NEA) — Jim Hearn's batting practice pitch was right on Willie Mays' fists. It was a pitch most hitters back away from, but the center fielding star of the New York Giants brought his bat around in a short arc and rode the ball into the upper left field stands.

Wes Westrum, standing behind the batting cage, whistled. "Willie doesn't mess around," the catcher said, softly. "He's the best there is getting that bat around. You see where that pitch was? Nobody else could have hit it."

A lot of baseball men feel that Willie has a chance to become the sixth major league player to win baseball's triple crown, the first since Ted Williams obliterated pitchers in 1942.

To lead the league in batting, home runs and runs-batted-in is the kind of a job only a Mays could do. Ty Cobb, Rogers Hornsby, Chuck Klein, Joe Medwick and Williams were the only ones to do it in the past.

Mays, 25, led the league in home runs with 51 last year and in 1954 showed the way in batting with 345. He has been among the top five in runs-batted-in for the past two seasons.

All of this impresses him about as much as a pitcher.

"Ballplayer is silly to go around making predictions," Mays says. "You just do your job and everything comes out OK. You shoot your mouth off and nothing comes of it, you're in trouble, man."

A lineup change made by Manager Bill Rigney figures to give Willie a clear shot at the runs-batted-in business. Don Mueller, the place hitting specialist, starts off for the Giants. Mueller is good for 185 hits a season, as a rule.

With Alvin Dark following Mueller, Mays, the No. 3 hitter.

Shawneetown Drops 3-2 Tilt To Carmi Nine

The Shawneetown high school baseball team dropped its first game of the season, to Carmi, Wednesday afternoon. The game, a 3-2 Carmi decision, was played on the winners' diamond.

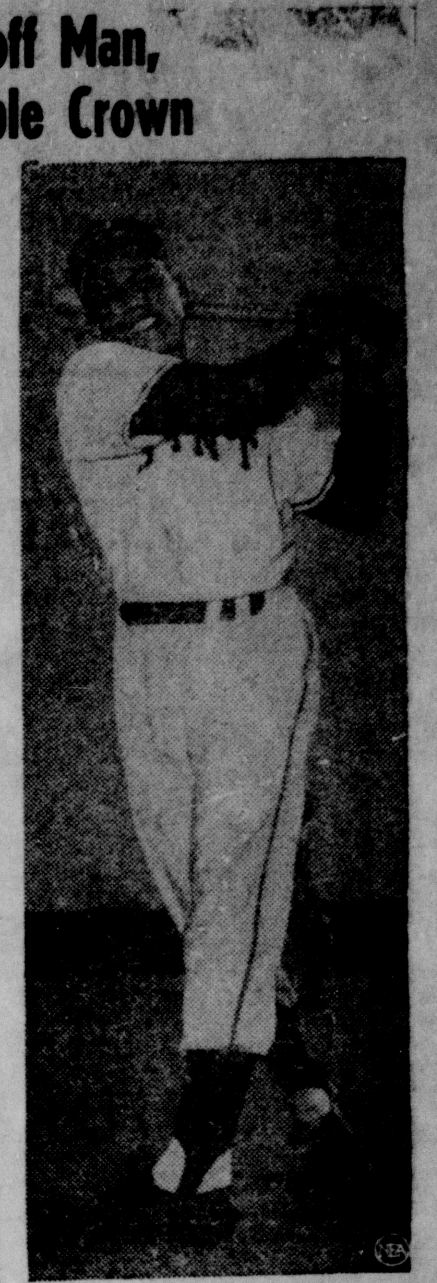

Shawneetown scored one in the second inning and another tally in the fourth. Carmi rallied for two runs in the bottom of the fourth, then the two teams played scoreless until Carmi scored in the ninth inning for the victory.

In the game-winning rally Winter of Carmi was safe on an error, and scored on a long hit to center field by Bell.

Usery, Carmi hurler, allowed seven hits, struck out the same number and walked two. Wiley was his catcher. Nolen was on the hill for Shawneetown and was touched for five bingles, had five strikeouts and walked one. Drone was the receiver. Each team made two errors.

Underwood had Shawneetown's best hit, a triple and Coleman and Drone chipped in with doubles. Shawneetown goes to Flora Friday, plays at Ridgway Monday, then the following Monday, May 1, plays at Carrier Mills and on May 9 will play St. Anthony of Effingham. Shawneetown would like to schedule another game during the week of May 7, away from home.

Willie Mays

should find more people on base when he steps in.

In 1954, Davey Williams, a .221 hitter, led off. Last season, the Giants never had a steady No. 1 man.

It's still the same Mays you see on the Polo Grounds turf. Willie is a bit less skittish, perhaps, but he still has that same this-is-fun attitude. He's the kind who makes you wonder how he gets through a winter without ball games.

The less triple crown talk Mays hears, the better he likes it. For one reason, he may have only a hazy idea of what the whole thing is.

"Do you know the six guys who won the triple crown?" he was asked.

"None," he answered. "Well, you have seen one of them play—Ted Williams."

"Uh, huh," Willie nodded. "Do you remember Joe Medwick?"

At this point, Garry Schumacher of the Giants' front office cut in.

"Willie don't know who those guys are," Garry said.

Mangrum Named Favorite for Tourney of Champs

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (U.P.)—Twenty-two champions teed off in one of the nation's most important professional golf tournaments today—with the veteran Lloyd Mangrum in the favorite's role.

It's the fourth annual $37,000 Tournament of Champions on the windswept Desert Inn Country Club course.

Because Mangrum learned his golf on the windy plains of Texas, he has been installed as a 5-1 favorite, while defending champion Gene Littler and Dr. Cary Middlecoff are listed as 6-1 in the betting marts of this gambling city.

It took victory in a major PGA-sponsored tournament to become eligible in this event which carries a top prize of $10,000. There were 24 men qualified and only Sam Snead, who had played in all previous tourneys here, and Jackie Burke, recent winner of the Masters, aren't on hand. Both had previous commitments.

Aside from Mangrum, Middlecoff and Littler, 19 men are long shots.

Nixon's Friends Sure VP Wants Renomination

WASHINGTON (UP) — Friends of Vice President Richard M. Nixon are sure that Nixon wants the number two spot on the Republican presidential ticket again.

President Eisenhower told his news conference Wednesday that Nixon had not given him a definite answer yet on whether he wants to be Mr. Eisenhower's second-term running mate.

On March 7 the President said he had told Nixon to "chart his own course" in regard to his political future and report back to him. But Wednesday he said he had received no answer from Nixon on which he would regard as definitive.

Friends of Nixon said, however, there is little doubt he would seek the vice presidential nomination. They noted these developments in Nixon's behalf:

Popular With Voters
The President has said he would be happy to have Nixon on the ticket.

The spontaneous and sizable write-in vote for Nixon in the New Hampshire primary where the balloting was not for a vice presidential choice at all indicated Nixon retains popularity with the voters.

Most Republican state and national leaders have indicated in numerous polls that they want Nixon again.

Other political news:
Adlai E. Stevenson, candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, accused Mr. Eisenhower Wednesday night of failing to give the nation "moral leadership" toward racial desegregation.

Stevenson told a New York audience that if he were elected president, he would work ceaselessly to carry out the Supreme Court's desegregation decision but would do so "in the conviction that to play politics with the court's decision and the basic rights of citizens and human beings is wicked."

Sen. Estes Kefauver, in a speech to the Vassar College faculty at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Wednesday, charged that relations among nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization have "deteriorated" during the Eisenhower administration.

Administration Will Oppose New Farm Plan

WASHINGTON (UP) — Republican leaders said today the administration will oppose and Congress will reject a new Democratic farm plan for direct subsidy payments to farmers.

Rep. Charles A. Halleck (R-Ind.) said the plan "hasn't got a chance" of winning congressional approval. House GOP whip Leslie C. Arends (Ill.) said it represents a "desperate attempt" by Democrats to delay action on the administration's $1,200,000,000 soil bank proposal.

Arends said the Democratic proposal is a "glorified version of the Brannan plan." Halleck also told newsmen that any new farm bill would be "certain to be vetoed" again by President Eisenhower if congress "again loads it up to the point where it is unacceptable."

Farmers could receive as much as 500 million dollars in government checks this year under the new Democratic plan. The subsidy proposal is scheduled for a vote in the House Agriculture Committee next week.

Under the plan, producers of five basic crops would receive treasury checks to make up the difference between support prices fixed by the administration and the 90 per cent of parity supports which it opposes.

Eisenhower Asks Genuine Friendship For All in Near East

CHICAGO (UP) — President Eisenhower called for "genuine friendship" for all peoples of the tense Near East in a message today to the opening conference of the American Council for Judaism.

The council, an organization of American Jews opposed to Zionism, stresses the difference between religion and nationalism. Council members are expected to discuss ways of offsetting "the myth of a Jewish vote" during this election year.

Mr. Eisenhower said, "tension and hostility in the Near East require now more than ever before the pursuance of policies based on genuine friendship for all the peoples of the area."

To help remove the shadows of war from the Near East, the President said, "a more widespread understanding of the traditions and beliefs that animate its people will assist Americans to follow with perseverance a right and just course."

U. I. Trustees Approve Plan to Build Housing For 3,636 More Students

CHICAGO (UP) — The University of Illinois Board of Trustees Wednesday approved plans to build additional housing for 3,636 more students at Champaign.

Included in the plan is an addition to house 636 women students at a cost of $2,329,911, and three new housing units for 1,500 men. Other units for another 1,500 men will be added to the project.

Cost of the first group of men's residences is estimated at between $5,250,000 and $6,000,000, with construction due to start in the fall.

Kelly Assures Daley He Said No Unkind Words About Chicago

CHICAGO (UP) — Grace Kelly's father assured Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley today that he never said a mean word about the Windy City.

The father, Philadelphia industrialist John B. Kelly, had been quoted as remarking facetiously "it might be a mob from Chicago" while discussing jewel robberies at his daughter's wedding in Monaco.

Kelly, however, assured Daley it was all a mistake.

"I was talking to some people when this fellow approached me and said 'Monaco is worse than Chicago,'" Kelly wrote.

"My reply was 'hardly.' That is the only word I spoke."

House Rejects Funds for Prison

WASHINGTON (UP) — The House of Representatives Wednesday rejected a proposal to vote funds for a new maximum security federal prison, possibly in southern Illinois.

The vote was 96-26 against Rep. Peter F. Mack Jr.'s proposal to add 9½ million dollars for the prison somewhere near the nation's center of population. The appropriations committee denied the funds, partly on grounds that the need has not been established and also because no site has yet been chosen.

26 Persons Die In Rash of Fires And Plane Crash

By United Press

Fires and a blazing plane crash killed 26 persons across the nation Wednesday and today. Fourteen of the victims were children.

The latest in a rash of deadly fires killed seven small children at Erie, Mich., early today.

John and Laura Cooper had left the children alone while the husband took his wife to work. The fire broke out while he was gone. He returned to find firemen trying to put out the flames. The children, ranging in age from 2 months to 9 years, were already dead.

In Atlanta, Ga., fire broke out on the first floor of the Biltmore Hotel and raced through ventilators to the roof early today. About 500 guests fled from their rooms and there were no immediate reports of deaths or injuries.

It was the nation's fourth hotel fire in three days. Others have occurred in Chicago, Iowa, and Pennsylvania.

Two fires in Pennsylvania Wednesday killed 14 persons. Nine persons, seven of them children and all of them Negroes, perished in a Philadelphia tenement fire. Another fire swept a Warren, Pa., hotel and firemen removed two bodies from the wreckage Wednesday night.

The crash of a giant Air Force KC97 flying tanker at Council Grove, Kan., killed eight men. The

The governor addressed a banquet session at the opening of a three-day training conference of the Illinois Veterans Commission and veterans groups.

METHODISTS TO CELEBRATE CENTENNIAL

Methodists Have Beautiful New Buildings for Centennial

at right, which the Methodists moved into a year ago. The church is a brick structure of Colonial architecture, spacious and complete in every detail. The spire rises 85 feet and is topped by an eight-foot copper cross.

Plan Special Services May 6 to 13; Rev. Cummins Will Open Observance With A Century of Christian Service

The Harrisburg Methodist church, which organized the first church in Harrisburg in the year 1856, will observe its centennial the week of Sunday, May 6, and Sunday, May 13.

This church, which has worshipped in seven different places since its organization, will feature centennial services and gatherings on Sunday, Monday, Wednesday and Friday of the week of May 6 and on Sunday morning, May 13.

The Rev. W. L. Cummins, minister of the church since 1948, will begin the observance of A Century of Christian Service with his morning sermon May 6.

At 7:30 p. m. Monday, May 7, there will be the pageant, "A Century of Methodism," at Wesley Center.

"Family Night" will be at 6 p. m. Wednesday, May 9. It will be in the form of a pot-luck dinner at Wesley Center.

The event of Friday, May 11, will be at 7:30 p. m. and is called "Trustees of the Future" — how the youth of the church is facing its responsibilities to the future.

Centennial Committees

Then on Sunday, May 13, at 10:40 a. m. there will be a sermon by the Rev. J. W. Cummins of St. Petersburg, Fla., a former minister in the Southern Illinois conference.

A number of Centennial committees were named to see that the events are carried out and they are as follows:

General: Mrs. E. M. Lasersohn, John Schork, Mrs. John Schork and Mrs. Charles E. Combe.

Historic Display: Mrs. Morris Skaggs, Mrs. Harry Border, Mrs. Naomi Shain.

Staging: Bob Bundren, Donald O'Neal, Hillis Stokes.

Centennial Dinner, Mrs. B. E. Montgomery, Mrs. James Gasaway.

Music: John Schork.

Publicity: Mary Richardson.

Youth: Bill Skaggs, Bill Bottomley, Jane Lasersohn.

The events will be in the beautiful and spacious new church and education buildings consecrated at special services held last May — a far cry from the first days of worship in a schoolhouse on Vine street.

W. L. CUMMINS, minister of the Harrisburg Methodist church, under whose pastorate the beautiful new buildings were built.

"A Century of Christian Service" during which the church has had three score pastors and has worshipped in store building, schoolhouse, court house and theatre as well as in church edifices, will be celebrated by the First Methodist church.

The church was organized in the fall of 1856 under the pastorate of the Rev. R. B. Pierce, who was in charge of the Raleigh circuit which included all of Saline county.

First services were in a store building at the southwest corner of the public square where the Jackson drug store is now situated. The building was constructed by Jarvis Pierce.

Construct Church

From 1857 to 1860 worship services were held in the town's first school house, which was located at Vine and Church. Services were held there until facilities were available in the court house and they were held there until 1871.

That year the church bought property on South Vine street (across from The Daily Register building) from Green B. Raum and Maria Raum under the pastorate of the Rev. B. A. P. Eaton and a church building was constructed. It was dedicated in August, 1871, by G. W. Hughey.

This was the church site until 1899, when the property was sold to William C. Thompson of Chicago as a site for the city water tower.

The next place of worship, from 1899 to 1903, was in the Cumberland Presbyterian church building, and during this period the congregations made plans for a new structure.

Buy on Poplar Street

On March 11, 1899, the church bought property on West Poplar street from William H. Parish Sr. and Mary A. Parish.

The church building which was used until shortly before the present church was built then was built by J. B. Ford and Robert King, and it was dedicated Sunday, Nov. 15, 1903, at which time the pastor, the Rev. A. S. Maxey, reported the cost of the building at $12,000.72.

In 1923 the Wesley Center building was purchased from Carrie Parish Cozart, daughter of William H. and Mary A. Parish. This was done under the ministry of the Rev. W. H. Whitlock.

History of Parsonage

The first parsonage was built on South Vine street in 1873 near the church, during the pastorate of the Rev. J. D. Reeder, and was used as a parsonage until the property was sold for a water tower in 1902.

The second was built in 1902 on the church property bought from William H. and Mary Parish on West Poplar. It was built just west of the church building.

The Rev. W. L. Cummins and family moved into the latest parsonage in May, 1951. This is a residence bought from Dr. D. A. Lehman and Mrs. Lehman and is located at 105 North Granger street.

Youth to Present 'Trustees of Tomorrow' Program on May 11

The Youth of the Methodist church will present the Friday, May 11, program with Bill Skaggs, Jim Bottomley and Jane Lasersohn as the youth committee and Mrs. L. N. Davenport, Mrs. James Henderson and Miss Mary Richardson as adult committee.

"Trustees of Tomorrow" will be their theme as they look forward into the future of the church. The Youth choir, the Junior choir and the Intermediate band will provide the music.

The young people of the church will be the trustees of the church within a few years. The church congregation should attend the Friday evening service to encourage and support them.

BISHOP CHARLES WESLEY BRASHARES, Chicago, resident bishop of the Chicago area of the Methodist church and head of Illinois Methodists.

SUPERINTENDENT. Maurice Winn, Harrisburg District Superintendent.

Announce Workers For Fellowship Dinner on May 9

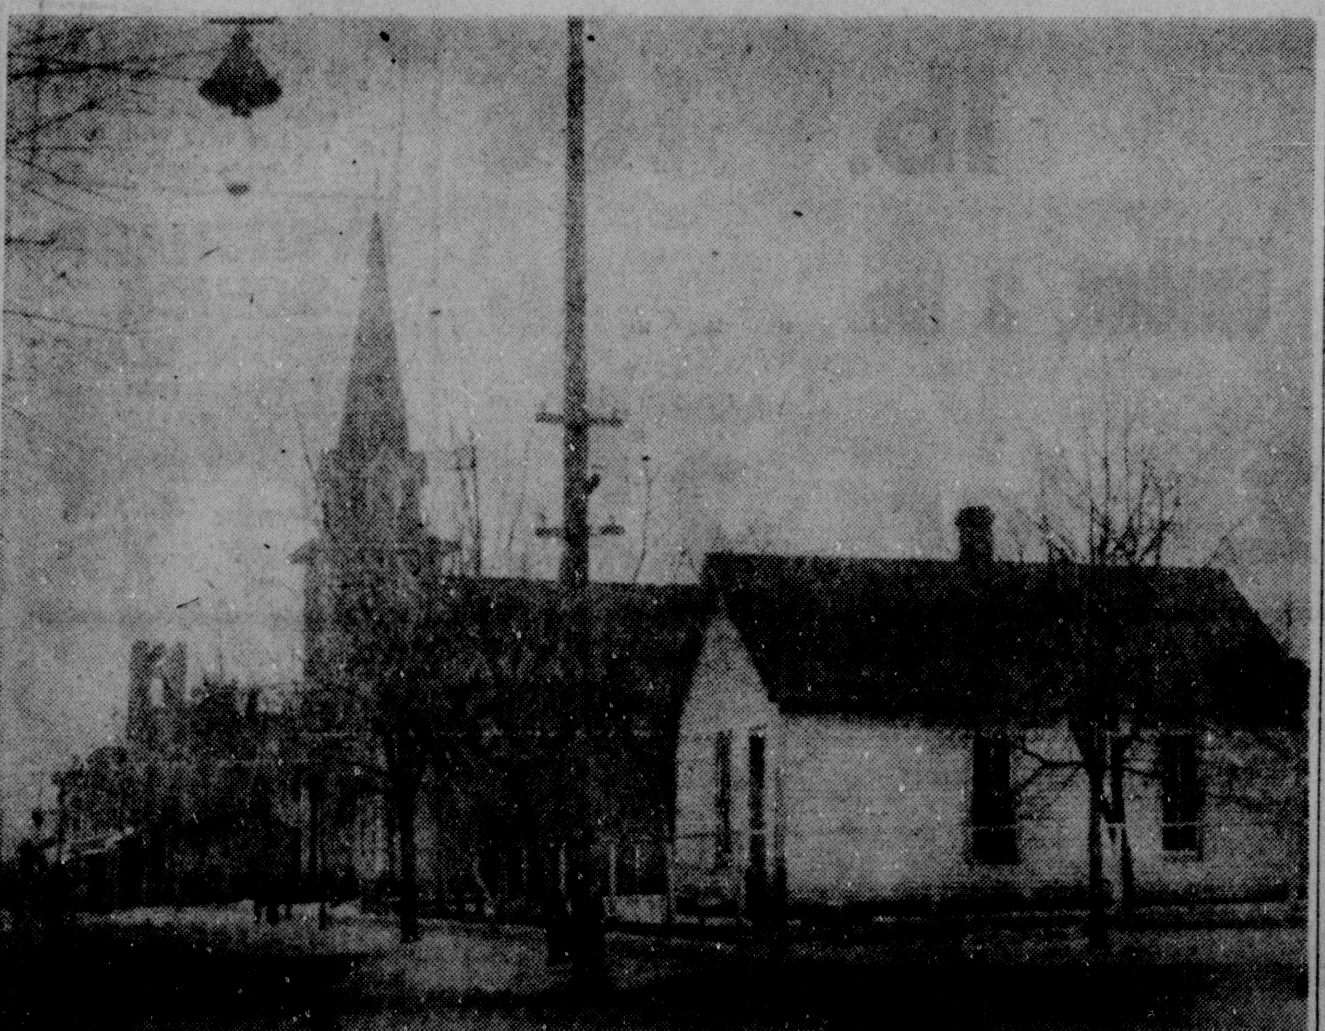

At the Wednesday evening May 9, fellowship dinner, every member of the church and his or her family is expected to be present. On that night the women might take food prepared by an old fashioned recipe or serve it in some antique dish. The whole meal will be potluck.

Mrs. B. E. Montgomery, who is chairman for the dinner, has announced her kitchen and dining room personnel as follows: Kitchen: Mrs. H. O. Buell, Mrs. Carrie Barter, Mrs. Donald O'Neal, Mrs. Gus Syers, Mrs. Bert Rude and Mrs. Gordon Guard. In the dining room will be Mrs. Hughey Walker, Mrs. Roy Thompson, Mrs. Coy Brown, Mrs. Mitch Golish, Mrs. Don Williams, Mrs. C. E. Seten Jr., Mrs. Ed W. Cummins, Mrs. Harley Shepherd, Mrs. W. F. Applegate, Mrs. Morris Skaggs, Mrs. Harry Horning, Mrs. J. H. Cummins, Mrs. Eltis Henson, Mrs. DeWitt Twente, Mrs. L. E. Kimmel, Mrs. C. E. Taylor, Mrs. E. M. Travelstead, Mrs. William Biggers and Mrs. B. G. Funkhouser. The latter committee is planning to wear old fashioned dresses and sunbonnets. Hostesses named are Mrs. W. L. Cummins, Mrs. J. A. Bottomley, Mrs. James Henderson and Miss Mary Richardson.

Mrs. Montgomery urges every member participate. It is not necessary for everyone to try to dress in costumes, she stated, as that might cause some persons to draw away. Incidentally there will be a prize given to the person who wears the most typical outfit of the 1850's.

THIS IS A FAMILIAR SIGHT to most residents. It is the church used by the congregation from 1902 to 1953 and was razed and removed from the church property. It was situated on the grounds to the east of the present structures. Four items from this old church building have found a place in the new structure. The bell is in the new steeple. The box and its contents from the cornerstone were placed in the new cornerstone in Wesley Center building. A portion of a stained glass window has been placed in the sanctuary as an altar background; and four fans from the balcony have been placed over the stage in Wesley Center.

THIS WAS THE FIRST CHURCH BUILDING erected by the Methodists in Harrisburg. It was situated on South Vine street across from the present Daily Register building and was used from 1871 to 1899. The building on the corner was the first school in Harrisburg and in the background is the old city hall.

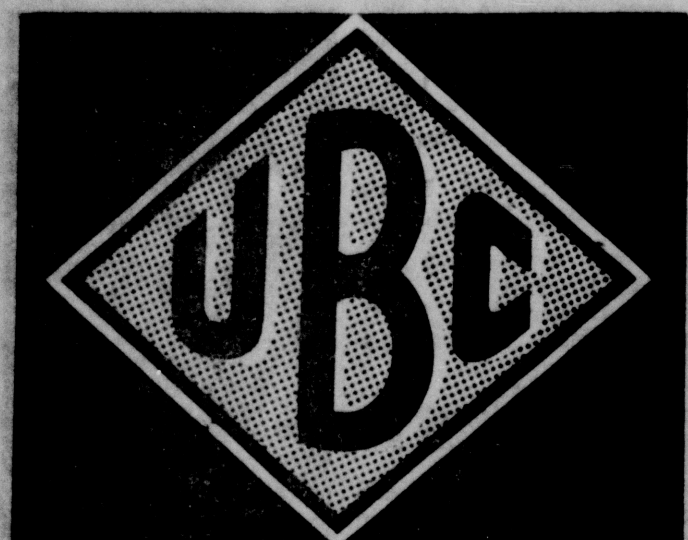

THIS IS THE WAY the sanctuary looks as one enters the front doors of the Methodist church. From chancel to narthex it is 88 feet long. The sanctuary seats 400 and has a balcony above the narthex which seats 55. The white sanctuary is lighted by eight 12-light polished brass candelabra suspended by the ceiling. Windows are of clear glass.

CENTENNIAL COMMITTEE — Three members of the church who have been very busy planning services for the centennial celebration are Mrs. E. M. Lasersohn (right), John Schork and Mrs. Schork. Other committee chairmen and workers have been working hard also in planning activities. A fourth member of the general committee is Mrs. Charles E. Combe, who has been out of town for some time. Equality Senior Wins FFA Award For Electrification

Gale Thacker

Gale Thacker, Equality high school senior and son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Thacker of Junction, won the Home and Farm Electrification award for FFA Section 25. The award was presented at the Section meeting held at Southern Acres near Carbondale.

This is an award presented annually in each section by the State FFA Foundation to some junior or senior boy who has been active in doing electrical work during his high school career as an improvement project.

Thacker has been quite active in doing electric wiring at home and in the community. He has received training in electricity at the Equality farm shop under the leadership of his Ag instructor, Burton L. Shann. His many activities has included helping wire two different barns in the community as a class project, wiring the school shop, wiring a church, maintaining electric equipment at home, and building electric projects.

Last year the electricity award was also won by an Equality senior boy, Allan Ray Porter. Thacker will compete in the district competition to be held at Benton on May 16. All sectional winners and their teachers in Illinois are invited on an all expense paid tour of electrical power stations, highly electrified farms, and factories to be held June 24, sponsored by the Illinois Farm Electrification Council.

Delegates to Women's Congress On Housing Favor Return to Parlor

WASHINGTON — One of the youngest delegates to the women's congress on housing today sharply criticized modern home builders for eliminating "privacy and gracious living" from their blueprints.

Mrs. Rosalie Ehart of Miami, Fla.—a trim, blonde mother of two—complained of the "informality" of glass-walled houses where kitchens spill out into dining and living areas.

Federal Housing Chief Albert M. Cole invited 100 housewives from throughout the nation to the congress to get their views on what the home of tomorrow should be. The women met in 10 discussion groups for the second day.

"We get enough push, push, push," Mrs. Ehart said before her discussion group met. "At home we should have privacy and something gracious."

She said she and her husband now rent a "traditional house" and are thinking of buying a $26,500 two-story house built 25 years ago.

with mankind for degenerating to such low levels.

There is another evil area in which many people sin almost as seriously as does the man who steals mere money or worldly possessions.

This kind of thief is the one who steals character, who defames his brother, who slanders a stranger or who accuses some innocent bystander. He robs something which cannot be replaced. He adds nothing to his own assets.

But gray-haired Mrs. Elizabeth Setzer of Grosse Pointe, Mich., said that since her two children have grown she would "love to have a rambler." She said she and her husband now own a 27-year-old $22,000 two-story home.

Mrs. Ehart also bemoaned the loss of a "library" in modern homes. She said children "would be more inclined to read the classics instead of comic books" if their homes had libraries.

Moreover, she said she fears that modern "pink and yellow" kitchens will turn out young girls who "only use ready-mixes." She said she wants an old-fashioned "cozy" kitchen so "herbal cooking won't go down the drain."

Progress reports from group chairmen indicated that most of the women want a revival of the old-fashioned "parlor." The majority also want "real" and separate dining rooms and a "functional" kitchen devoted chiefly to cooking.

The "parlor" mentioned in almost all 10 reports would be a place, in the words of one chairman, "where children's manners automatically come to the foreground." It would be apart from a "family living room" which housed the television set and less expensive furniture.

"More storage space" also was a unanimous demand. As one group chairman — Mrs. Everett Sugarbaker of Jefferson City, Mo., a mother of 10—put it: "Not those FHA 3 by 5 closets: They shouldn't even be a minimum."

The Angry Hills

By Leon M. Uris

© 1955 by Leon M. Uris. Used by arrangement with Random House, Inc. Distributed by NEA.

THE STORY: Mike Morrison, an American caught by the invasion of Greece in 1941, is trying to deliver information to British intelligence at Athens. Mike escapes German capture through the aid of Greeks, who take him to the north part of the country. Once more he is forced to flee and a girl Eleftheria takes him to the home of Leonidas, who lost a son in the war. Leonidas wants to adopt Mike as his son, but Mike is determined to contact the Underground at Athens.

XVIII

A middle-aged woman, obviously not Greek, sat behind a small counter with earphones on her head. There was a desk and many papers scattered on it. Eleftheria approached with great caution.

"I wish to see Dr. Harry Thacker," she whispered.

"Your name, please?"

"Eleftheria Yalouris."

"Do you have an appointment with the doctor?" the woman asked, looking inquiringly at the uncomfortable peasant girl before her.

"No. He does not know me."

"Just a moment, please," the woman said. She rose from behind the counter and disappeared behind a large double door that led down a long corridor.

The receptionist returned. "I'm sorry, Dr. Thacker cannot see you."

Eleftheria fidgeted with her handbag and shifted her weight several times. She tried to think of what Jay had told her.

"When can I see him?" That was the right thing to say.

"I'm afraid he is very busy. He is preparing an expedition for some diggings."

She remembered that as a small child she had seen some foreign men digging around Dernica. Before the war foreigners always came to dig all over the province.

"But—but I have traveled all the way from Dad. It is very important."

There was a buzz from the odd box on the desk. The woman stopped the buzz by sticking a piece of metal attached to a cord into a little hole. The door opened and two men who were not Greeks came into the room and sat down and looked at magazines. "Just what do you want to see Dr. Thacker about?"

"It is a personal matter and one of great importance—and I have come a long way."

The woman shrugged and once again disappeared behind the double doors. She returned. "Follow me, please," she said. The woman marched briskly down the long carpeted hallway past several doors with little brass name plates on them, turned sharply, and opened one and motioned Eleftheria in. She closed the door behind the girl.

The room was stiff and paneled and Victorian. The only light was a small desk lamp. A man sat behind the desk. He looked gaunt and was pasty in complexion. His hair was thinning and his face was bony.

"You wish to see me?" his voice said in a monotone.

"You are Dr. Harry Thacker?"

"That is correct."

She bit her nails and thought very hard to relay Jay's exact words.

"A good friend of mine," she started, trembling, "stays in the house of my cousin. He wishes to come to Athens. He told me that a mutual friend said to come to see you."

"Sit down, girl."

She edged into a stiff mahogany chair in front of his desk and now she could fully see this zombi-like man.

"He stays in Kalogriani. It is a village that is in the province of Larissa."

The man opened his thin lips. "Tell me about this friend of yours."

"He is a British soldier. One from New Zealand."

Thacker's face remained rigid. "If your friend is a British soldier it would be against the law to bring him to Athens. America is not at war with Germany, and I am an American."

"But my friend says . . ."

"I'm sorry. I can be of no help to you. I would advise you to leave Athens. This sort of thing can get you into a great deal of trouble."

Eleftheria arose, puzzled. She started to walk toward the door then turned, her eyes beginning to well with tears. "But—your mutual friend—a man from Scotland . . ."

Eleftheria felt her flesh crawl under the steady stare from the weird-looking man.

"Why does your friend wish to come to Athens?"

She felt a funny dryness in her mouth as she opened her lips to speak. "He told me to tell you he has 17 excellent reasons why he wishes to come here."

Thacker rose from his chair. "Remain here. I shall return in a moment."

Dr. Harry Thacker stepped across the hall to another office. A man named Thanassis sat with earphones on his head. He stood up when he saw Thacker.

"You heard her," Thacker snapped. "What do you think?"

"It is Morrison, all right," Thanassis answered.

"Thank God he's still alive. I've all but given up hope."

"We need that information desperately," Thanassis said. "What about that girl in there?"

"Are our traveling companions outside?" Thacker asked, referring to the Gestapo who now kept constant watch on his movements.

"They're there, as usual."

"Better order a car. We're going to have to slip that girl out. We can't take the risk of having them pick her up. Have someone contact Lisa to meet us at Papa-Pantos. I'm sending her up to get him immediately."
